LAUSCHE ADDS NEW MEASURES FOR ASSEMBLY

Governor Outlines Reasons For Special Call of Ohio Legislature.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Governor Lausche this afternoon expanded his call for the special legislative session to include three additional subjects.

As the 96th Ohio general assembly convened for its fourth special session, Gov. Lausche's message gave it for consideration the following three subjects:

1. Easing of restrictions for Ohio licensing of physicians who served in the armed forces;

2. Permitting the highway department to take over maintenance of the Pomeroy-Mason bridge over the Ohio river when the bonds are paid out and tolls cancelled in the next two months, and

3 Providing $15,665 for a state hospital survey to enable Ohio to participate in the 75-million-dollar yearly federal aid hospital construction program.

Wants Pension Boost.

Previously the governor had announced the legislature would be asked to increase the ceiling on Ohio old age pensions from $40 to $50 and to establish commissions to study Ohio's over-all tax structure and the salaries of state workers.

Under present law, the governor pointed out, the ceiling on pensions and aid to the blind is $40 a month, of which the federal government pays $20. Congress increased the federal grant to $25 on any pension of $45 or more. Lausche, however, made it clear that he favored dollar-for-dollar matching and a $50 Ohio ceiling.

"I recommend," he stated, "that a law be enacted by this body that will permit the payment of $50 monthly to each eligible aged and blind person, of which the state shall contribute a maximum of $25."

Regarding the state salary study commission, which he gave second place in his message, Lausche pointed out that temporary increases, ranging to 30 per cent, given state workers by the last regular session expire on Dec. 31.

"Consideration should be given to the establishment of a fair and just wage and salary structure for state employes on a permanent basis," Lausche said.

MOBILIZE TO CRUSH CHIANG

Chinese Communists Call For Fight to Finish Against Nationalist Forces.

NANKING—(U.P.)—China's 130,000,000 Communists were under open "war mobilization" orders today to crush Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist armies in what amounted to the first declaration of war in an 18-year history of civil strife.

Communist-held areas throughout China were alerted yesterday by the Kalgan radio. Villages from Manchuria to North Kiangsu were ordered to guard against possible Nationalist air raids.

Chinese sources in Shanghai said Gen. George C. Marshall, special American peace envoy, and U. S. Ambassador John Leighton Stuart were returning to Nanking for a final effort to avert the spread of hostilities. Marshall conferred with Chiang at Kuling over the weekend, and Stuart talked with officials at executive headquarters in Peiping. Neither reported progress.

Communist sources estimated their armed strengt at 10,000,000, or about the size of America's wartime forces. Red troops were ordered by the Kalgan broadcast to "shatter Chiang Kai-shek's offensive." Spokesmen said the call to arms was the first step in a nation-wide civil war which Chiang "revealed in his V-J day speech."

(At that time Chiang said rebellion would be "put down" and that "a state within a state" could not exist.)

ISSUES NEW STAMP

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The post office department has announced that it will issue a new five-cent air mail stamp to cover the new air mail service which becomes effective Oct. 1 The new stamp will be red and white with a picture of a modern four-motored transport plane in the center.

Schools Back On Schedule

Mansfield public schools will return to their pre-war operating schedules Sept. 3 when the new term begins, the board of education decided last night.

Elementary schools, 8:30 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., and 1 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.; junior high schools, 8:15 to 11:25 a. m., and 12:25 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.; high school, 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. There will be three lunch periods of one-half hour each in the high school. The lunch periods will be staggered, the first starting at 11:30 a. m.

During the war, school began one-half hour earlier.

PICTURE, 'TIP' CLUES CHECKED IN BABY CASE

City Detectives Run Down New Leads in Abandoning of 4-Months-Old Baby.

A baby picture and a 'tip' to local police were being investigated by Mansfield detectives today in the hope of establishing the identity of a four-month-old baby abandoned in Fort Wayne last month.

Linked to Mansfield by a discarded milk bottle and bottle cap which bore the label of the Isaly dairy here, the blue-eyed, sandy-haired baby boy was found beneath a back yard cherry tree in Fort Wayne.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that two women provided new leads by calling police last night. One said that she believes she has a picture of the boy taken shortly after birth.

She said the parents of the boy, whose picture she has, moved to Fort Wayne recently. Their child should be about four-months-old now, she said.

She also informed police that the parents are living with people in Ft. Wayne whose last name begins with the letter "E." A laundry marking on one of the baby's blankets was "BE."

Bates said that he would not reveal the name of the Fort Wayne family until police there had had an opportunity to investigate the lead.

The chief said that the other woman informant said that she knew of a woman who moved to Indiana from an Ohio city with a young baby "but doesn't have the baby now."

Bates said that leads would be

RIOT ENDING

Uneasy Peace Returning to Strife-Torn Calcutta.

CALCUTTA —(INS)— Calcutta police were forced to open fire again today on "hooligans" engaged in looting but a spokesman for the Bengal government said the general situation in the riot-torn city "continues to improve."

Provincial and city authorities kept a sharp lookout for a possible new outbreak of large-scale battling between Hindus and Moslems which caused thousands of deaths.

The Bengal government spokesman said: "There are definite signs of returning confidence in all parts of the city, although a considerable amount of apprehension still remains."

Angry Men Storm Jail, Free Vet

CAMBRIDGE — (AP) — Sheriff Wilmer O. Oliver disclosed today that an angry group of 75 men stormed the tiny jail at nearby Byesville Saturday night and released Clifford Shatto, a 19-year-old war veteran.

The men, the sheriff said, didn't like the idea of Shatto being confined, so they picked up the jail, which he described as a "shed," and Shatto walked out a free man.

BELIEVE IN SIGNS

WHEELING, W. Va. —(INS)— Police said thieves had taken the Cash and Carry Lumber company at the firm's word. Missing was a 400-pound safe which was carried through a door forced open. Company officials did not immediately estimate the amount of money in the safe.

NEAR DEATH AFTER CRASH

Man Reported From City in Lorain Hospital; 6 Others Hurt in Traffic.

Arthur Stone, 30, said by Lorain police to be from Mansfield, was reported near death today in a Lorain hospital as the result of injuries suffered yesterday in a traffic crash near Vermillion in which two persons were killed and four others were injured.

Meanwhile six other persons were injured, none seriously, in two auto accidents in the Mansfield area last night.

Stone was riding in a car driven by Ewing E. Board, 35, of Cleveland, who was killed. Robert Tirpach, 45, another passenger, believed from Cleveland, was also killed.

Police in Lorain said they had a West Third street address for Stone, but residents at the address said he didn't live there. He suffered a skull fracture and internal injuries.

Injured in accidents near Mansfield were Miss Hazel Clappsaddle and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cahill, all of Marion; Neil Denman, 17, Fredericktown, R. D. 3; Gerald Denman, 12, and Robert Davis, 9, of Flint, Mich.

Miss Clappsaddle and Mr. and Mrs. Cahill received minor injuries when their car ran into a ditch on a curve near Iberia late last night.

Minor injuries were suffered by the Denman brothers and the Davis boy when a car driven by Neil Denman collided with one driven by Clay Petry, 54, Mt. Vernon, R. D. 2, at 8:15 p. m. yesterday in the south edge of Bellville on State Route 13.

By LARRY MURPHY
(News-Journal Staff Writer)

CLEVELAND—Mansfield's McVey post band and drum corps truly won a "place in the sun" yesterday during the mammoth department of Ohio American Legion parade through downtown Cleveland.

Although they were not entered in competition, Mansfield's new Legion band, as well as the drum corps, drew resounding applause from more than 100,000 spectators lining the route of march as they stepped smartly down Euclid avenue in the afternoon sun.

With parade competition from some 60 other musical units, they acquitted themselves nobly throughout the warm afternoon, as did Ashland's Harry Higgins post No. 88 Legion band.

SURRENDERS

Craft Slips Through Posse, Gives Self Up.

JACKSON, Miss. —(AP)— Jailer C. M. Herrin said today that Johnny Craft, one of three brothers sought by a posse in connection with the ambushing and shooting of four men in Smith county, had surrendered to officers in Jackson.

Craft slipped through a heavily armed posse of several hundred officers and citizens in the Sullivan Hollow area about 60 miles southeast of Jackson yesterday and appeared early today at the Hinds county jail.

Lawyer's Files Yield Half-Century Records

When the late C. H. Workman, well known Mansfield attorney, died April 29, 1945, he left many legal documents stored in his office files.

His daughters, the Misses Helen and Florence Workman, took the papers, mostly wills and copies of wills of deceased persons, to probate court. There were 59 such documents, the earliest dated 1895 and the latest 1943.

One envelope contained three pieces of jewelry, including an old wedding ring with the worn letters "A.J." engraved in it.

Judge S. H. Cramer today urged persons whose private papers might be included to claim them or to file them officially with the court.

'NOT MY FAULT,' STATES GOERING

Says People Used His Name to Gain Prestige For Projects.

NUERNBERG—(INS)—Fat, but thinning-out Herman Goering in a flapping uniform took the stand today to deny he authorized experiments on human "guinea-pigs" at the Dachau concentration camp.

Goering was permitted to testify at his own request.

He waddled confidently to the witness box before the international military tribunal and smugly asserted that his name was used in connection with those experiments although he did not specifically authorize them. He said:

"It was commonly known in Germany that no name was used as much as mine to give prestige to a project. If any one wanted something done, he said the Reichsmarshal wanted it. In 1944 I was forced to organize a special department to prevent mis-use of my name."

While Goering was on the stand the British prosecutor, Sir Maxwell Fyfe, read document after document linking him with experiments subjecting humans to low-pressure chambers, freezing, spotted fever and drinking sea-water.

Goering said his name was used only because he was chairman of the Reich research council, which was responsible for coordinating all branches of science in the German war effort. He added that it was usual practice to sign the name of a department head without consulting him.

Goering recalled that U. S. Prosecutor Robert Jackson charged he had a "fat finger in every pie." Goering contended today that he did not have "enough fingers to stick them into every low-pressure chamber experiment."

Workmen Stay Away In Protest

Scores of Jobs In City Area Held Up By Walkout.

Construction of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of building projects in the Mansfield area ground to a halt today as carpenters failed to report for work in a spreading "holiday."

Scores of construction jobs halted as carpenters protested the loss of a raise in pay which contractors granted them during the month when price controls were non-existent.

At that time carpenters had their pay boosted to $1.63½ an hour. With the restoration of price controls the wage adjustment board of the labor department was reported to have declined to recognize the full amount of the raise.

Prior to the "OPA vacation" carpenters were getting $1.45½ an hour.

While Thomas Geddes, secretary of Carpenters Local 735, was not available for comment today, contractors said the walkout was at least city-wide.

In addition, the workers at the Vetsville project on U. S. Route 30 near Mifflin were idle for their third day.

Meet Today.

Contractors said that efforts to settle the dispute were to be made at a meeting between the carpenters' representatives and contractors at 3 p. m. today. They said the conference would be held at the union's headquarters, 12½ West Fourth street.

Most of the contractors said they had received no notice of the walkout from the carpenters and that they don't know officially what problems are involved.

With Geddes unavailable for comment, there was no reliable information as to what the issues of the dispute are, how many carpenters are off their jobs, and how wide an area is affected.

LIQUOR RUMPUS MORE CONFUSING

Ruling on Sales Near Fairs Left Hanging in Air By City, County Officials.

Whether or not Mansfielders will be able to buy liquor within two miles of the fairground during the Richland county junior fair Thursday and Friday still was undecided today as the legal background of the problem became more and more confused.

The state liquor department said it will not enforce the 1888 statute forbidding liquor sales in the vicinity of agricultural fairs until its constitutionality has been established.

Mansfield's Police Chief Meade K. Bates said his department would not enforce the ancient law unless specifically requested to.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson doesn't know what procedure to follow and has asked County Prosecutor Theodore Lutz what the legalities are.

The Richland county Permit Holders association, equally confused about the problem, is scheduled to consider it at a regular monthly meeting in the Southern hotel at 7:30 p. m. today.

Lutz has replied that, as he sees it, the "law is still on the

ACHESON BLUNT IN CRITICISM OF YUGOSLAVIA

U. S. Sends Third Emphatic Protest After Slav Pilots Shoot Down U. S. Plane.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Undersecretary of State Acheson, in charge of the department in the absence of Secretary Byrnes, today bluntly denounced a Yugoslav attack on an American plane as "an outrageous performance."

Acheson made this characterization as the United States handed the Yugoslav government a new and emphatic protest—the third disclosed in two days.

A spokesman within the Yugoslav government said today that "our pilots did the right thing," in commenting on the shooting down of an unarmed American transport plane yesterday and forcing another to land earlier.

Defends Attack.

"They did nothing which was not in coordination with our own and international rights," said the spokesman, who declined to be quoted by name. The government itself refused official comment.

A person who saw the second C-47 attacked yesterday said the big transport went down spiralling in black smoke during an attack by two Yugoslav fighters. Four or five cannon shot could be heard. Only two parachutes were seen to open from the plane, which carried five crewmen. No passengers, mail or cargo was aboard.

Acheson took the usual course of permitting reporters at his news conference to quote him directly on the phrase "outrageous performance" and lashed out at Yugoslavia's treatment of planes in the area near Trieste by saying that it was not the type of action one would expect from a friendly country.

Note Gives Protest.

The latest American note said: "It would be assumed that the authorities of Yugoslavia would wish to render a maximum of assistance and succor to aircraft of a friendly nation when the latter are forced by the hazards of navigation in bad weather over dangerous mountain barriers to deviate from their course and seek bearings over Yugoslav territory."

"On the contrary," the note continued; "Yugoslav fighter aircraft have seen fit without previous warning to take aggressive action against such a United States transport plane, the identification of which was clearly apparent from its markings and have forced it to crash land after wounding one of its passengers.

"Subsequently, Yugoslav authorities have detained the plane, its crew and passengers and refused to permit American consular officers access to the plane or personnel until specific representations were made by the United States embassy to the latter effect."

DECISION SOON

Decontrol Board Announces Ceiling Verdict Tonight.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The nation's consumers will know tonight whether prices on meat, milk, butter and some other market basket items will be pegged by OPA at approximate levels in force on June 30.

The important decision is scheduled to be handed down at 7 p. m. EST, by the three-man price decontrol board. It will rule on whether meat, dairy products, grains, soy beans and cotton seed products will be clamped under price curbs or allowed to remain uncontrolled.

OPA disclosed last night that if the board flashes the go-ahead sign for controlling prices on the commodities its verdict will not take effect until 12:01 a. m. Friday.

Barclay on Bridge

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

How often a player sets out upon a particular plan, and then abandons it just at the stage when it would produce results for him. That happens sometimes when a declarer fails to lay down a last card of a long suit, usually trumps, which would squeeze the opposition. It also occurs when a defender fails to repeat a trick which he had led, just because it didn't bring him any particular immediate results the first time. This is especially disastrous if it is a trump lead which he refrains from repeating, when that is the only lead which would help the business. This lapse almost makes it seem as if he failed to remember his original plan to bring down ruffs.

Bid slightly differently at the various tables, this duplicate deal arrived at a spade small slam in most cases, and in each of them West, disliking leads from his side-suit honors, opened the spade 10. Some of those Wests had a still more important reason for the trump lead—the perfect fit shown by North and South indicated a great likelihood of ruffing ability which could be destroyed by trump leads.

After the first trick, won by South's Q, the defense varied. The worst was where South, after leading the diamond 5 to the second trick, saw West hop in at once with his A because he now saw a "harmless" lead away from his hand. It was the diamond 7 to the K. Let's see how harmless it was. The club A took the next trick, the diamond Q furnished a discard the club 3, a club was ruffed, heart A was used for a diamond discard, heart 3 was ruffed, then straight cross-ruffing of hearts and clubs completed the hand with the last five tricks, using five trumps.

At another table, when South to the second trick led a diamond, West played low, then won the diamond Q with the A and returned his last spade. That beat South two tricks.

Representatives of the Shelby schools and board of education gave assurances at a recent open meeting at Union grange that the introduction of a vocational agriculture department and improvements in the home economics department and the chemistry and physics laboratories were first on the list of improvements to be made in the school system if the school bond issue passes at the election this fall.

The approval of both the building bond issue and the proposed operational two-mill levy were absolutely essential for the improvement to the school plant and the operation of the school, the representatives said.

Thirty-two Qualify For Championship Play at Coolridge

IN THE SPORT LIGHT

by Hal Clawson

Play in the city tennis tournament is moving along fine except for the men's singles where three matches are holding up the works.

This morning the tennis committee was just about ready to default some of the players if they aren't played by tonight.

Post 72 turned in a 3-1 victory over Smitty's Grill under the lights at Marion Sunday night. . . . Some sparkling play by the Legion's infield highlighted the game. . . . Not a single fly ball went to the outfield. . . . Richardson and Walker each had two for three at the plate.

Firestone's girls' swimming team which performed here at the water show a week ago Sunday finished seventh in the women's national AAU meet at Ahakamak State park, Indiana. . . . Betty Lachok, Firestone free-styler, was second in the 880-meter free style, finishing behind Ann Curtis.

Picking up the loose ends from the ninth big National Soap Box Derby finals here Sunday afternoon:

Everyone in Mansfield should be proud of the honors brought the city by Marlin Kindinger during his stay in Akron. . . . Of the 11 Ohio cities having entries in the big event, only the Cleveland racer, Dick Zoller, made a better showing than did Marlin.

During the time trials Saturday afternoon Marlin tied with several other drivers for the second best time—27 seconds. . . . Detroit's racer was clocked in 26.8 Saturday.

When I arrived in Akron Sunday morning for my first national finals, it was a great sight to see the drivers and their friends discussing the derby. . . . From the time you got within a block or two of the Mayflower hotel, you began to hear people talking about their favorite.

Cards Win To Narrow NL Lead

Sisler's Double Brings Win Over Cincy.

By JACK HAND
(AP Sports Writer)

Dick Sisler, the forgotten man of the St. Louis Cardinals since his early season failure at first base, is changing the jeers to cheers at Sportsman's park with his clutch hitting in the Red Birds' drive to catch the first-place Brooklyn Dodgers, who lead by 1½ games.

The son of the great George Sisler started the campaign as the regular Cardinal first sacker, prompting Manager Eddie Dyer to okay the sale of Ray Sanders to Boston.

When Sisler failed to hit big league pitching, Dyer gave him a rest. Sisler "flopped" on a second try. Dyer tried him in left field Aug. 9 and he has hit at a .310 clip since he regained a regular job.

Last night the brawny youngster started the Birds off to a 6-0 romp over Cincinnati on a double with the bases loaded in the first inning.

Young Sisler's father now is one of the top talent scouts for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Sisler has to share top billing with Ken Burkhardt who shut out the Reds with eight scattered hits the fourth time he has whipped Cincinnati this season.

St. Louis' shutout over Cincinnati was the only scheduled game in the National and was the only big league game played as threatening weather forced postponement of Chicago-New York and St. Louis-Boston tilts in the American league.

Giants Whip OSL Farm 9

(By Associated Press)

The New York Giants had a clearer conception Tuesday of what their farm team at Springfield can do after trimming the Ohio State league nine, 5 to 3.

The National leaguers took on their little brothers Monday night in an exhibition game at Springfield, and although victorious they were outhit by three safeties.

A couple of home runs did it. Buddy Kerr hit one with one aboard in the third, and Buddy Blantner duplicated the performance in the fifth.

Bill Mellen got a circuit clout in the sixth for Springfield with the bases empty.

Springfield's closest rivals in the league—the Zanesville Dodgers—picked up a half-game on them Monday night by defeating the Richmond Roses, 13 to 4, giving Hardy Holt his 20th victory.

In other games, Newark defeated Middletown, 13 to 10, and Dayton took Marion, 8 to 7.

Isham-Wilcox In Net Semi-Finals

After losing the first set, 5-7, Ruth Isham and Norman Wilcox came back to take two straight sets from Bud Rice and Sally Russell in the mixed doubles play of the city tennis tournament, 6-3, 6-2.

The winners advanced to the semi-finals and will meet Mr. and Mrs. Sam Campbell.

Winner of this match will meet the Mary Ettinger-Bill Johnson team in the finals thus Saturday at Woodlawn. This team gained the finals with a victory over Mary Soprano and Jay Banks on Sunday.

Kleins Gain Playoff Tilt

Larry Madden whipped up a choice two-hit mound dish last night on the North Lake softball field to give Klein Furs a 1 to 0 victory over Shell Oil and a first place tie in the Independent league with Safety Cabs.

The Klein nine and the Cabmen have each won eight of ten games and will play off for the league banner.

Bob Regula turned in a fine five-hit effort but could not match Madden's work. The Furriers' lone tally came in the top half of the fourth inning.

Depot Knocked Out Of Play

SHELBY — The Parcel AAF Specialized Supply depot was knocked out the running by the Shelby Salesbook company in the second half of the Shelby softball league play, 6 to 4, Monday night on the waterworks diamond.

It was the fifth win out of eight games for the Salesbook and the third loss out of seven games for the depot.

Laubie's Shelby Filling Station and the Legion nine meet tonight on the waterworks field at 6 p. m.

Young Akron Golfer One To Watch In Caddy Tournament

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Even-tempered Tony Ondrus, of Akron whose irons got particularly deadly in the high numbers, was a conspicuous, 180-pound lad today as 64 youngsters opened match play in the national caddie tournament.

It wasn't just the bulk of the 15-year-old Turkeyfoot Country club caddy that made him noticeable, either, for he was sporting a qualifying three-over par 75 equalled only by 17-year-old Bob Harnuch of Cleveland.

But despite his promising start over the windswept Ohio State university course yesterday, young Ondrus, a finalist in the Akron district amateur this summer, wasn't satisfied.

Known for his sharp approach shots and ruler-straight putts, he complained especially of his bad fortune on greens. "They just wouldn't go down," he lamented. "They stopped inches from the cup or they rimmed or they kicked away."

The same trouble haunted Harnuch who missed fairly short putts on Numbers 17 and 18 in birdie attempts but nonetheless ended with a par 36 for the best nine-hole round of the day.

The pair was to play off their tie for medalist trophy today.

Just below Harnuch and Ondrus yesterday was Tom Nicporte of North College Hill, a Cincinnati squad with a pair of 38's for a 76. And in third place with 77's were Detroit's Norman Goeckel and John Gavins of Whitefield, N. H.

Jinx who happened to the pre-tournament favorites was probably on. Such boys as Danny Kaye, Hawaiian boy, and Chuck Hutchison of Sandusky, O. in 85's, and husky Tom Rigsby of Pocatello, Ida., had an 85.

Harrison Takes Early Lead In PGA

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—Easy-going Ernest J. "Dutch" Harrison and his hot putter led a par-shattering brigade of professional golfers over the Portland golf club today in the second round of the 36-hole qualifier for the PGA tournament.

Twenty-eight of the 128 players teeing off yesterday broke par 72 on the 6,524-yard course, and eight of them matched par.

Seven strokes below perfect figures was drawling Dutch, with a 32-33—65.

Veteran Jimmy Hines of Chicago came in late in the day to post a pair of 33's to take the runner-up position in today's dash for medalist honors.

Knotted with 68's were Melvin "Chick" Harbert, long-hitting Northville, Mich., pro, and reliable little Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa.

Vic Ghezzi of Knoxville, Tenn., 1941 PGA champ, was the first in with a 69, and was followed by Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Tex., Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., and ex-baseballer Sammy Byrd of Detroit.

Ten stars finished with 70, including defending champion Byron "Aching Back" Nelson. After Nelson finished with his 36-34, he automatically qualifies.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Bob Feller will bid for an elusive 22nd victory when he hurls for the Cleveland Indians in tonight's tussle with the Washington Nationals.

The Tribe fireballer has been defeated in his last two starts.

The series with Washington will be a battle for fourth place, as the Indians are only one game removed from the lower rung of the first division.

Mayer Has Best Score; Two Other Flights

All First Round Matches Must Be Played By Aug. 25; Title Play Set for Sept. 22.

By HAL CLAWSON

Thirty-two Coolridge golfers have qualified for the club's championship flight, it was announced today.

Joe Mayer led the qualifiers with a 31-36—67, followed by Steve Stirtzinger with a 69.

Other low scores turned in were Pete Thoma, Mike Reif, Pete Zimmerman, Ed Blonston and Frank Jocha, all with 70's.

Manager Fred Huntsman stated today that all first round matches of both the championship and third flights must be played by Aug. 25.

Losers in the first round of the championship flight will make up the second flight. A third flight of 34 players will also be played.

The 32 golfers in the title flight will be after the club title won last year by Ray Malaska.

Liberty Takes North, 7-2

North Lake missed a chance to clinch the Park softball league pennant by dropping a 7 to 2 decision to Liberty on the Prospect park diamond.

Liberty scored in every inning except the fifth to record the upset victory. North leads the loop with six wins in 11 starts while Liberty and Prospect are knotted for second with six wins and six losses.

North Lake will get another chance to take the crown in a tie-game playoff with Johns. However, a Johns victory would leave the loop in a four-way tie for first.

Thirty-two Qualify For Championship Play at Coolridge

Hal Clawson

Play in the city tennis tournament is moving along fine except for the men's singles where three matches are holding up the works.

This morning the tennis committee was just about ready to default some of the players if they aren't played by tonight.

Post 72 turned in a 3-1 victory over Smitty's Grill under the lights at Marion Sunday night. . . . Some sparkling play by the Legion's infield highlighted the game. . . . Not a single fly ball went to the outfield. . . . Richardson and Walker each had two for three at the plate.

Firestone's girls' swimming team which performed here at the water show a week ago Sunday finished seventh in the women's national AAU meet at Ahakamak State park, Indiana. . . . Betty Lachok, Firestone free-styler, was second in the 880-meter free style, finishing behind Ann Curtis.

Picking up the loose ends from the ninth big National Soap Box Derby finals here Sunday afternoon:

Everyone in Mansfield should be proud of the honors brought the city by Martin Kindinger during his stay in Akron. . . . Of the 11 Ohio cities having entries in the big event, only the Cleveland racer, Dick Zoller, made a better showing than did Martin.

During the time trials Saturday afternoon Martin tied with several other drivers for the second best time—27 seconds. . . . Detroit's racer was clocked in 26.8 Saturday.

When I arrived in Akron Sunday morning for my first national finals, it was a great sight to see the drivers and their friends discussing the derby. . . . From the time you got within a block or two of the Mayflower hotel, you began to hear people talking about their favorite.

Cards Win To Narrow NL Lead

Sisler's Double Brings Win Over Cincy.

By JACK HAND
(AP Sports Writer)

Dick Sisler, the forgotten man of the St. Louis Cardinals since his early season failure at first base, is changing the jeers to cheers at Sportsman's park with his clutch hitting in the Red Birds' drive to catch the first-place Brooklyn Dodgers, who lead by 1½ games.

The son of the great George Sisler started the campaign as the regular Cardinal first sacker, prompting Manager Eddie Dyer to okay the sale of Ray Sanders to Boston.

When Sisler failed to hit big league pitching, Dyer gave him a rest. Sisler "flopped" on a second try. Dyer tried him in left field Aug. 9 and he has hit at a .310 clip since he regained a regular job.

Last night the brawny youngster started the Birds off to a 6-0 romp over Cincinnati on a double with the bases loaded in the first inning.

Young Sisler's father now is one of the top talent scouts for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Sisler has to share top billing with Ken Burkhardt who shut out the Reds with eight scattered hits the fourth time he has whipped Cincinnati this season.

St. Louis' shutout over Cincinnati was the only scheduled game in the National and was the only big league game played as threatening weather forced postponement of Chicago-New York and St. Louis-Boston tilts in the American league.

Giants Whip OSL Farm 9

(By Associated Press)

The New York Giants had a clearer conception Tuesday of what their farm team at Springfield can do after trimming the Ohio State league nine, 5 to 3.

The National leaguers took on their little brothers Monday night in an exhibition game at Springfield, and although victorious they were outhit by three safeties.

A couple of home runs did it. Buddy Kerr hit one with one aboard in the third, and Buddy Blantner duplicated the performance in the fifth.

Bill Mellen got a circuit clout in the sixth for Springfield with the bases empty.

Springfield's closest rivals in the league—the Zanesville Dodgers—picked up a half-game on them Monday night by defeating the Richmond Roses, 13 to 4, giving Hardy Holt his 20th victory.

In other games, Newark defeated Middletown, 13 to 10, and Dayton took Marion, 8 to 7.

Kleins Gain Playoff Tilt

Larry Madden whipped up a choice two-hit mound dish last night on the North Lake softball field to give Klein Furs a 1 to 0 victory over Shell Oil and a first place tie in the Independent league with Safety Cabs.

The Klein nine and the Cabmen have each won eight of ten games and will play off for the league banner.

Bob Regula turned in a fine five-hit effort but could not match Madden's work. The Furriers' lone tally came in the top half of the fourth inning.

Depot Knocked Out Of Play

SHELBY — The Parcel AAF Specialized Supply depot was knocked out the running by the Shelby Saleshook company in the second half of the Shelby softball league play, 6 to 4, Monday night on the waterworks diamond.

It was the fifth win out of eight games for the Saleshook and the third loss out of seven games for the depot.

Laubie's Shelby Filling Station and the Legion nine meet tonight on the waterworks field at 6 p. m.

Young Akron Golfer One To Watch In Caddy Tournament

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Even-tempered Tony Ondrus, of Akron, whose irons get particularly deadly in the high numbers, was a conspicuous, 180-pound lad today as 64 youngsters opened match play in the national caddie tournament.

It wasn't just the bulk of the 15-year-old Turkeyfoot Country club caddy that made him noticeable, either, for he was sporting a qualifying three-over par 75 equalled only by 17-year-old Bob Harnich of Cleveland.

But despite his promising start over the windswept Ohio State university course yesterday, young Ondrus, a finalist in the Akron district amateur this summer, wasn't satisfied.

Known for his sharp approach shots and ruler-straight putts, he complained especially of his bad fortune on greens. "They just wouldn't go down," he lamented. "They stopped inches from the cup or they rimmed or they kicked away."

The same trouble haunted Harnich, who missed fairly short putts on Numbers 17 and 18 in birdie circuits but nonetheless ended with a net 36 for the best nine-hole round of the day.

The pair was to play off their tie for medalist trophy today.

Just before Harnich and Ondrus went today was Tom Nieporte of North College Hill, a Cincinnati youth, with a pair of 38's for a 76. And in third place with 77's were Fairport's Norman Goeckel and John Gavins of Winterfield, N. H.

Just what happened to the pre-tourney favorites was problematical. Such boys as Danny Kaye of Hawaii, boy, and Chuck Hutchinson of Sandusky, O., boy and husky Tom Ruzely of Peoria, Ill., had an 82.

Harrison Takes Early Lead In PGA

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—Easy-going Ernest J. "Dutch" Harrison and his hot putter led a par-shattering brigade of professional golfers over the Portland golf club today in the second round of the 36-hole qualifier for the PGA tournament.

Twenty-eight of the 123 players teeing off yesterday broke par 72 on the 6,524-yard course, and eight of them matched par.

Seven strokes below perfect figures was drawling Dutch, with a 32-33—65.

Veteran Jimmy Hines of Chicago came in late in the day to post a pair of 33's to take the runner-up position in today's dash for medalist honors.

Knotted with 68's were Melvin "Chick" Harbert, long-hitting Northville, Mich., pro, and reliable little Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa.

Vic Ghezzi of Knoxville, Tenn., 1941 PGA champ, was the first in with a 69, and was followed by Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Tex., Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., and ex-baseballer Sammy Byrd of Detroit.

Ten stars finished with 70, including defending champion Byron "Aching Back" Nelson. After Nelson finished with his 36-34, he automatically qualifies.

Lincoln Nine Edges Prospect

Although out hit 7 to 3, Lincoln Heights managed to edge Prospect, 2-1, in the second round playoff in the Junior softball league last night at Liberty park.

Harness Races At Toledo

TOLEDO, O.—Long a mecca for harness race enthusiasts, Toledo will be restored as a sulky center this season when the sport returns to Fort Miami fairgrounds under the auspices of the newly-organized Toledo Fort Miami raceway.

Plans approved by the Ohio State Racing Commission provide for a 30-day October meeting with the sulkies being wheeled out every night but Sunday. In all, there will be 27 racing evenings with an eight-event program of straight races each time out.

In announcing the dates of the meeting, the Toledo Raceway also stated a five-year lease had been obtained on the historic Fort Miami Fairgrounds and that more than $50,000 would be spent in track and grandstand improvements. Next year two Grand Circuit meetings are planned.

60 Report At Shelby

SHELBY — Approximately 60 Shelby high school grid candidates received uniforms from Coach Al Fendrick and his aides Monday night at the school and were ready for opening practices today.

First drills were held at 9 a. m. today for the charges under Coach Fendrick, who is making his debut as a Shelby mentor for the first time this fall. Fendrick, former Madison high school coach, has been employed as field executive for the Johnny Appleseed Boy Scout area.

Four assistant coaches are on the Shelby staff this fall. They are Larry Swackhamer, former head coach, Joseph Yohn, Charles Williams, William Wilkins and Paul Curry. This is the largest coaching staff in the school's history. Each assistant coach has been given an assignment for the next two weeks.

Following the giving out of the equipment, the coaches held a staff meeting.

The assignments of the coaching staff are as follows: Fendrick, assisted by Curry, will instruct the backfield candidates; Wilkins, who formerly played for Fendrick at Madison and is a graduate of Akron university, will handle the ends; Swackhamer will have charge of the tackles and Yohn will have the guards.

The centers will be in charge of Williams who will be assisted by John White. Shelby's all NCO league center two years ago. Last year White was the regular center for Ohio university and backed up the line defenses. He will help the Whippets until the middle of September, when he leaves for Bowling Green where he transferred last January.

Liberty Takes North, 7-2

North Lake missed a chance to clinch the Park softball league pennant by dropping a 7 to 2 decision to Liberty on the Prospect park diamond.

Liberty scored in every inning except the fifth to record the upset victory. North leads the loop with six wins in 11 starts while Liberty and Prospect are knotted for second with six wins and six losses.

North Lake will get another chance to take the crown in a tie-game playoff with Johns. However, a Johns victory would leave the loop in a four-way tie for first.

There is mystery about the Warner-Joan Crawford relations. A report that she signed again is apparently premature. Much talk was aroused in Hollywood when the studio, in brag ads for its 20th anniversary of sound pictures campaign, did not mention the two biggies Crawford had made for it . . . Reports indicate the Winter Garden will be dropped by Arthur Rank, British producer, and will go to Universal, which has no other theaters. I hear Mark Hellinger's "The Killer" (which looks like a smash in the projection-room) opens at the Garden—and that's a Universal.

Reported Romancing — Nancy Carroll's lovely daughter, Pat Kirkland, and Warren Leslie of the Social Register, at Bradley's . . . Paul Berney, gem dealer, and Berenice Gilbert, to marry in the fall, I hear . . . Jack Cassidy, of the late "Around the World," and Evelyn Ward of the chorus . . . Billy Rose's Daurine Andres and Steve Ellis, Giant's broadcaster, together again and again, since she switched from Peter Lawford . . . Ned Schuyler, owner of Miami's Beachcomber, and Louise Jarvis, showdoll, seem serious . . . Lois Andrews with test-pilot Johnny Martin . . . Woolie Donahue escorting Lady Stanley (Sylvia Ashley) at El Morocco, and, at the next table, Buddy Rogers, husband of Mary Pickford, who once was the wife of Sylvia's late husband, Douglas Fairbanks, sr. Complicated? That's what I thought.

Lt. Col. Gregory (Pappy) Boyington's book is finished and in the hands of the busy Walter E. Smith, who seems to have about eight hands. Not only will Smith publish, but he'll do the movie himself, as an independent, perhaps as a roadshow entry. Admiral Nimitz has offered Smith any fleet facilities required for the screen adaptation. The title, first time announced anywhere, is "Where Are We Now?"

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Among the reasons why Stanley Walker, one of our best newspaper men, is saying farewell to New York is that in the clubs and restaurants, the bars and people's homes, he encounters men and women of ostensible intelligence who try to intimidate him with fiery crosses of political and ideological bigotry. He seems to insist that he hasn't yielded but he writes, nevertheless, that he is becoming a refugee.

Except that I have no clubs and don't frequent bars, I have had the same experience these last few years. I have a sense that this intolerance and personal hatred of the fish who swims upstream is a pervading thing but, for comfort, I sometimes recall a thought expressed some years ago by a great, musical orator, Carruthers Ewing, of Memphis and New York.

"What one man thinks and what another man has thought curse and canker the mind and heart and bank the intellectual waters that ought to roll and run unhampered," Mr. Ewing said. "Fear of criticism and of contempt makes more slaves and perpetuates more nonsense and breeds more agony than the mind of man readily grasps."

One night during the last presidential campaign, Mrs. Irene Kuhn, who had handled press relations, distaff, on Tom Dewey's campaign train, and her daughter Irene, jr., were walking quietly near their home in Greenwich Village.

Born of Irish parents in Chelsea Village, close by, Mrs. Kuhn has lived in that region most of her life. Political hysteria and bigotry and alien accents were in the air, reminiscent of evil nights in Munich, and the two Irenes wore Dewey buttons as they strolled.

Near a corner meeting, a Negro woman spotted these political insignia and, shrieking "Fascists!" brought a crowd.

"You make one pass at me, Mrs. Kuhn remarked sedately "and I will break your damned neck. This is my home and my country and I will vote as I please."

This sort of thing was not common in New York in those days but only because few of those who intended to vote for Dewey, and did vote for him, had the belly for public commotion.

At a party in the high suburbs a rich woman of the hunting set with pretensions to breeding and intellect, snatched a Dewey button from another woman's dress and threw it on the floor. The victim of this abuse of course should have dragged her around by the hair and the hostess would have been within good manners to order her out, publicly, but it was passed off.

Among business men in New York in that angry time, Republicans avoided politics or silently agreed with Roosevelt men at lunch, aware that if they announced their intention to vote for Dewey or criticized Roosevelt they would make enemies and lose important orders.

I know men who endured this and I know that some of the Brown Shirts who held this evil threat over American citizens were among the noisest of those who yowled up the four freedoms and damned the Nazis. We had an underground movement of our own composed of Republicans who well knew that their business would suffer or that they might lose their jobs if they merely exercised their right to express their political opinions and intentions.

To my regret, I confess that I voted for Roosevelt not once but twice. The first time I was thoroughly deceived but I remind you that his platform and his speeches in 1932 were such as any credulous American would have approved.

In 1936 the fault was my own and I now believe that had we elected Alf. Landon we would have fared much better if only because the Communists would have been kept out of our government and the anarchistic union movement would have been brought under control of law and government. But, like the Germans, we wanted a leader and he led us, in the end, to the iron curtain.

I began to violate the thought-control of the Roosevelt following soon after Landon's defeat and my rebellion has increased in force and results day by day ever since. Unlike Mr. Walker, I have no regrets for friendships, if they were that, which vanished in controversy.

I was right and I have discovered many a vile hypocrite among the Samaritans who helped the common man to the mouth of the alley and rolled him for his liberties and pay. Anyway, I will not be policed in my politics or opinions and I will maintain against every literary bar-fly and all the ignoramuses and precious imposters of the stage and screen, all the illiterate professional scandal-mongers and the fry-cooks and bar-tenders turned tavern-keepers and political pundits, that Roosevelt was a greedy cheap-skate, stingy and mean in his own dealings with the common man in his employ, a swindler in the Hartford and Baird loans to his boy, Elliott, a dead-beat whose butcher had to threaten suit to collect his bill for meat supplied the family and a profiteer in office. I say he degraded the morals of millions of Americans and glamorized leering dishonesty.

Hal Boyle — Globe-Jotting

By IRENE ANGERSTEIN
(For Hal Boyle)

BERLIN (AP) Her name is Mrs. Schulz and she's a "hausfrau" but you don't find her at home cooking. For one thing, there is not much to cook, and for another she's too busy removing the rubble and debris heaps from her once beautiful city.

They talk much of reconstruction in Berlin but when it comes to action, it's women like Mrs. Schulz who are doing the work-the 3d women, the mothers and the housewives. Day in and day out they are making neat piles of bricks from the junk heaps of masonry that once were houses and buildings.

They don't work for any altruistic reason, such as atoning for the evil Germany brought on the world. They work because it's a job to which they have been assigned by the labor office and through which they receive a worker's food ration card.

"Of course I'd stay home if I could," says Mrs. Schulz as she doggedly swings a heavy hammer against a stubborn piece of rock. "You do not think that I like this job, do you?"

Whether she likes it or not, Mrs. Schulz and her colleagues working in groups of about 200, have been steadily removing Berlin's rubble since last May. They have organized their daily labor into a real science.

Mrs. Schulz' particular gang of 217 women they call themselves the "Reichstag Rubble Removers" because they work in the shadow of the once famed building—serves as a good example of all the crews of women swarming like so many ants over the city's rubble heaps.

Promptly at seven every morning, whatever the weather, they report to their foreman, a grizzled bachelor who swears by instead of at his workers.

"Frankly," he admits, pulling grudgingly at his stubby chin, "I had my doubts. I hate women. But these women do better than any crew of men I've ever supervised. Look at them and see for yourselves."

Divided into three groups the "Reichstag Rubble Removers" were toiling busily in the dust of a hot day. One gang worked directly in the rubble, pounding large stones into small ones and passing the bricks from hand to hand assembly line fashion, to waiting iron carts which ran along transplanted trolley tracks.

The second gang, the cart pushers, had enlivened their dull work by chalking nicknames and slogans on their carts: "Give me sausage and ham and I'll be happy all day." "If you think I give up, you're crazy." "Hotter den linden express."

CHILD DROWNS IN FARM TROUGH NEAR GALION

Mother Finds Girl, 15 Months Old, in Two and Half Feet of Water.

GALION — Karen Elizabeth Shifley, 15-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shifley, was drowned Monday when she fell into a water trough on the B. J. Heiser farm, northwest of Galion, where her parents reside.

The child was found submerged in two and one-half feet of water. Her mother found her. Dr. O. R. Kackley, Crawford county coroner, issued a verdict of accidental death by drowning.

The child is survived by the parents; a brother, William Dale; the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Sipes, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Shifley, all of Galion, R. D. 3; and her paternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Shifley, Bucyrus, R. D. 3.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in the Snyder funeral home by Rev. R. R. Elliker, pastor of the First Reformed church, where Karen was on the Cradle roll. Burial will be in Iberia cemetery.

DAV PROGRAM AID PROMISED

McGregor Says Disabled Vets Should Be Provided With Opportunity.

Support of the program of the Disabled American Veterans in rehabilitation of disabled veterans was pledged today by Rep. J. Harry McGregor.

In a statement issued in response to a request of the DAV, McGregor said:

"I do not believe we should regard these boys as a 'problem,' but should think of them as individuals who should be given normal opportunities in our American way of life insofar as possible.

"We should make every effort to impress upon the public mind, and the minds of these boys, that they will be given the opportunity to carry on their work with the facilities they have, and not to think of what they 'had.'

"The Disabled American Veterans with the personal information and contacts it has and experience to its credit, can render an invaluable service in rehabilitating the disabled veteran."

The DAV asked members of both houses of Congress for statements on what they thought to be of first importance to disabled veterans. The statements will be used as a guide in deliberation of delegates to the 25th national convention of the DAV in Portland, Ore., Sept. 2-6.

SOLDIER HELD

Ashland Serviceman Bound Over on Forgery Charges.

ASHLAND Pfc Gerald L. Barnes, 21, Ashland serviceman absent without leave from Chanute Field, Ill., is in city jail where he is being held without bond on forgery charges. The serviceman was bound over to the grand jury in municipal court Monday after entering a plea of innocence to issuing three forged checks in the name of Charles B. Mick, also of Ashland. The checks were for $30 each.

Barnes is being held pending investigation to determine whether or not he has forged other checks. The checks were cashed at an Ashland bank and Ashland stores.

The Red Cross here has communicated with Chanute Field to learn whether Barnes can be released for immediate trial or whether the case must await his discharge from service. Charges of forgery were filed by Mick's wife who first learned of the forgeries Sunday.

The $70,000 plane was delivered today to the Shelmar Products corporation, Mt. Vernon, for use by the firm's executives and in its business trips. The plane will haul six passengers in addition to the pilot.

Harrington said 14 of the planes have been delivered to industries since last January by the Harrington Air Service.

DRY GROCERIES PRICES LISTED

OPA Mails New Ceiling Regulations to Mansfield, Area Stores.

New OPA ceiling price lists for approximately 300 dry grocery items were in the mails today, addressed to about 160 stores in Mansfield, Bellville, Butler, Lucas, Shelby and Plymouth.

"We had been wondering when they were coming out," an employe of the Mansfield OPA office commented when informed the Cleveland OPA office had announced mailing of the lists to 12,600 northern Ohio grocers.

The prices, effective immediately, will remain in effect through September 15, the Cleveland OPA said. Grocers are required to post the lists conspicuously.

Local price control boards were instructed to check next week to make sure grocers have compiled with the regulations.

Cashell Rites To Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Charles A. Cashell, 75, retired Mansfield building contractor, who died Monday, will be conducted Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the Wappner funeral home. Rev. C. W. Stoneburner of the First Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Mr. Cashell, who lived at 196 South Franklin avenue, was walking to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Lantz, 254 South Mulberry street, when he was stricken near Lexington avenue and South Main street.

Modern Pied Pipers To Use Red Squill In Rat Clean-Up

A three-months campaign to rid Mansfield of rats and mice—at least temporarily—was under way in the city today directed by Cleveland Entomologist Alfred Balzano.

Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, said that he has recommended approval of the eradication program only as a "second best" measure to an out-and-out "rat proofing" campaign.

Dr. Wild said that the only reason the program is being sanctioned by the city is that no legislation has been adopted by city council for a rat-proofing campaign and because "the general public won't carry ont the program on its own initiative."

The rat-ridding program directed by Balzano will use red squill, a Mediterranean grown onion harmful only to rodents, and a "germ" which causes paralysis of rodents' muscles, a spokesman for the program said.

Property owners will be asked to pay for the cost of the eradication materials, the spokesman said. The city is to be divided into 24 sections and the ridding program carried out section-by-section.

Dr. Wild described the program as "only temporary." He said the rodents will probably be back in the same areas from which they were eradicated "within a year."

The only sound method, he said, is a complete re-building program for the city, providing basements for structures which don't have them and for building rats "out" of structures through competent construction methods.

"But the eradication program is the best we can do now in light of the fact that we can't go forward with a complete 'building out' program, the doctor said.

The spokesman for the rat-ridding program estimated that the city has approximately 2¼ rodents per person and that a rat "costs" about $7 per year in food, fire and property damage. Dr. Wild said the figure is nearer $20 a year.

Plans Set For Open-Air Party

More than 100 members of the South Boulevards Civic club will participate in a lawn fete tomorrow night which will close the summer social season for the suburban village.

Open to the public, the lawn fete will be held at the corner of Sunset boulevard and Beechwood drive. Direction signs have been erected in the community.

Frank Vild, chairman, has announced that a complete dinner will be served, starting at 5 p. m. Entertainment will include miniature golf, croquet, horseshoe, and pony rides. Music will be furnished by the Nels Blocker orchestra.

All equipment for the affair is being furnished by individuals in the community since the Civic club has just organized this year and has no equipment, Vild said. Proceeds from the lawn fete are to be used to purchase interior equipment for a new community center.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and 4-H girls are helping on the committees, in addition to Civic club members.

EXAMS TO END

Last Chance For Swim Class Entrance Tests Tomorrow.

Last chance for taking entrance examinations for Red Cross swimming classes at the Casino swimming pool at North Lake park will be Thursday at 10 a. m., Sam Fox, chairman of the Red Cross water safety committee, reminded today.

The classes will be held for junior and senior groups under the instruction of the Misses Ilene and Irene Hoffman. Those between 12 and 17 are eligible for the junior group. Seniors must be 17 or older.

Entrance exams will be held tomorrow and Thursday at 10 a. m.

Tires Upset, Turn In Fire Alarm

A load of tires "sent in" a false fire alarm yesterday and sent Fire Companies 1 and 2 hurrying to a North Diamond street warehouse.

Firemen reported that the tires upset on a fire alarm box at the Harter warehouse, 288 North Diamond street, yesterday about 4:30 p. m. and caused the false alarm to be sounded.

PLANS PAYROLL TAX

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—A payroll tax plan will be submitted to the electorate in November, the Springfield city commission decided last night. The proposal would call for a tax of one-half of one per cent effective Jan. 1. It would cover demands of wage increases presented the commissioners by most municipal departments.

CITY SCHOOLS NEARLY READY FOR NEW TERM

Vacancies Are in Industrial Arts Department at Senior High.

Two instructors, one in machine shop and one in mathematics, for the Senior high school vocational department still are needed to complete the roster of teachers in the Mansfield public schools, Supt. W. L. Miller told the Mansfield board of education last night.

The board approved 11 appointments, two resignations, and one leave-of-absence.

Marjorie Boals Cowden was appointed to the Senior high school staff and Hazel MacArthur was named to teach special classes for the deaf.

Permanent substitutes appointed were Gladys Barnhill, Ruby Doolittle Beer, Freda Farmer, Pauline Hetrick, Edith Miller, Mary Osborne, Mary Leigh Otey, Jane Pumphrey, and Frances Schultz.

A leave-of-absence was granted to Miss Hazel Zellner because of ill health.

2 Teachers Leave.

The board accepted the resignations of Cloude Blake, English teacher at Senior high school, and J. Herbert Perrill, ex-serviceman, who had been teaching at John Simpson junior high school.

Miss Blake, who came to the city school system 28 years ago, will retire, Supt. Miller said. She has taught thousands of Mansfielders during her stay in the schools.

Perrill will leave the teaching profession to help his father on a large farm near Washington C. H.

The board decided to table, for future consideration, a letter request from Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, that, in order to permit an expanded health program, which the present allocation of four nurses to the schools would not permit, the board employ another nurse or have teachers trained to handle part of the less technical health work to reduce the load on the nurses. The board agreed to continue the health program now in effect and stated that, when it was financially possible, it would consider an expanded health program.

A motion to accept a retail selling unit for use in distributive education, offered as a gift by Sears and Roebuck, was approved. The unit will permit setting up a complete retail store situation to aid instruction in retail selling.

ON TRIAL—

The success which the "rent-a-room" drive enjoyed here in Mansfield was viewed with enthusiasm in several other cities in Ohio and adjoining states.

Mansfield was probably the first community to make such an effort and other communities which are not as far along with their peace-time conversion program were watching the developments here, according to Paul Motz, state director of the U. S. Employment Service. Motz told C. W. Handley, manager of Mansfield USES office, when he stopped for a check on the drive while en route to Cleveland that several other cities in this region comprising Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan, will be using the same plan. When the two-day drive ended the women campaigners had registered 610 rooms and more are trickling in to the employment office daily. Handley said even school teachers are trying to obtain rooms from the list compiled for workers, but teachers are not eligible for them.

IT'S A BOY—

It's a boy! Seven times in the past 24 hours anxious fathers heard a nurse make that happy announcement at General hospital and not once was it interrupted with "You have a daughter, sir." The new score of seven boys and no girls in any one day surpassed by one boy the previous record made during the war when six boys and no girls were born in a day at the Mansfield hospital.

McVey Post Legionnaire Max Lewis enjoying the "time of his life" with an old tin can and a string, scaring the wits out of women legionnaires. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sargent watching a replica of "the Spirit of '76" from Wellington, perform in front of the Hollenden . . . Jean Boylan, Kathleen Watts and Betty Them, drum majorettes for McVey Post's drum and bugle corps, doing a neat tap dance on tables.

Jack Lewis "knocking himself out" during the pre-convention parade Saturday night, by playing a strictly 'hot' trumpet in an improvised band and parade through downtown Cleveland, which put Mansfield on the map for Clevelanders. . . .

M'VEY, ASHLAND BANDS PRAISED BY THOUSANDS

from sympathetic spectators all along the route of march They had placed second in competition for class B bands on Sunday.

Scores of Mansfield delegates, alternates and visitors, who turned out for participation in the largest Legion parade staged in Cleveland since 1936, joined the 10 000 Legionnaires who made Aug 19 a memorable day in the lives of thousands of Ohio veterans.

Solemn Reminder.

For World War II veterans, the occasion was a solemn reminder that within the very near future they would inherit the vast organization carefully created and sustained over a period of more than two decades

It was "their day," too in that it was the first time they had participated in a mass public demonstration of their strength to remind fellow citizens of the desire for a lasting peace

A forerunner of this reminder was indicated in week-end caucuses preceding state Legion elections today when World War II Legionnaires rose to their feet and virtually demanded more recognition and representation in state and district affairs

McVey 40-8 Cited.

After being cited by fifth district Commander Melvin Shafer as an outstanding example of guidance and acceptance of younger Legionnaires into post activities, McVey post of Mansfield carried away further laurels yesterday

Mansfield's 40 and 8, fun group of the Legion, won for the first time the coveted trophy cup for outstanding work on the state Legion child welfare program

Gaining for Mansfield recognition for the best child welfare program in the state, the 40 and 8 of McVey post was awarded the cup for $500 donated to the Mansfield YMCA to build up its woodwork shop, for movies shown at the Richland county Childrens home, and for $2 000 donated to the Boy Scouts and $5 000 to the Girl Scouts The latter was donated for erection of a recreation building at Camp Ninnwan.

Election Today.

Before the "big parade" which climaxed the day for all Ohio Legionnaires, more than a score of Mansfield delegates and visitors helped pack Music Hall of the public auditorium to hear speeches by former Governor John W Bricker, Marine Commandan General Alexander A Vandergrift and other national and stat notables.

Mansfield delegates, joining wit nearly 3,000 others from Ohio 622 Legion posts, laid aside fun and frolic this morning to begin at 8 a m the serious business of considering some 74 resolutions, and to elect state officers

Following elections at 11 a m, installation of newly-elected officers was to be held, with singing of "America" and retirement of the colors signalling the close of the four-day convention

It was believed this morning that Ashland's protesting of class B band ratings in Legion competition would be brought up on the convention floor before noon, according to Wendell Murray, director and organizer investigated in Mansfield and the information they provide sent to Fort Wayne police

Meanwhile, Mansfield Detective F. Bruce Friday said that a search of hospital records here failed to produce any additional clue to the identity of the child

Friday said that records showed no baby born at General hospital in recent months fits the abandoned child's description. The "milk bottle" boy has a contracted pupil in the left eye and Indiana police had expressed hope the birth record might have noted such a condition.

Hospital authorities here also said that the hospital doesn't keep a file of foot prints of new-born children They are given to the child's parents when they leave the hospital.

It was hoped that a check of prints with that of the abandoned child might help lead to the boy's identity.

Meanwhile, an indication that the parent or parents may have traveled via Pennsylvania railroad to Fort Wayne from Mansfield was seen in the fact that the baby was found not far from the station at about the time a train is scheduled to arrive in Fort Wayne from Mansfield The baby was found at 2 40 a m

WHAT IS WRONG WHEN PRAYER FAILS?

Thirty years ago in Forbidden Tibet, behind the highest mountains in the world a young Englishman named Edwin J Dingle found the answer to this question. A great mystic opened his eyes A great change came over him He realized the strange Power that Knowledge gives

That Power, he says can transform the life of anyone Questions, whatever they are can be answered The problems of health, death, poverty and wrong can be solved

In his own case, he was brought back to splendid health He acquired wealth too as well as world-wide professional recognition Thirty years ago, he was sick as a man could be and live Once his coffin was bought Years of almost continuous tropical fevers, broken bones near blindness, privation and danger had made a human wreck of him physically and mentally

He was about to be sent back to England to die when a strange message came—"They are waiting for you in Tibet" He wants to tell the whole world what he learned there under the guidance of the greatest mystic he ever encountered during his twenty-one years in the Far East He wants everyone to experience the greater health and the Power, which there came to him

Within ten years he was able to retire to this country with a fortune He had been honored by fellowships in the World's leading geographical societies, for his work as a geographer And today 30 years later, he is still so athletic, capable of so much work so young in appearance it is hard to believe he has lived so long

As a first step in their progress toward the Power that Knowledge gives Mr Dingle wants to send to readers of this paper a 9,000-word treatise He says the time has come for it to be released to the Western World, and offers to send it, free of cost or obligation, to sincere readers of this notice For your free copy address The Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd, Dept 384A, Los Angeles 4, Calif Readers are urged to write promptly as only a limited number of the free books have been printed —Adv.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1946

Children do not realize the danger of playing in the street—but their parents should.

If the meek are to "inherit the earth" it's about time for them to make themselves known.

The average amount of money in circulation for each man, woman and child in the country has dropped 17 cents—which doesn't seem to make much difference, since 17 cents will no longer buy a pork chop anyhow.

Fair Week for Youthful Farmers

THIS is the week of Richland county's Junior fair. While it lacks some of the fanfare and glamor of the old-fashioned county fair with its racing, midway and free acts, the Junior fair emphasizes all that was constructive and educational in the old-time event.

A mere list of the participants is impressive. It indicates the type of exhibits which make up the fair. Boys and girls who belong to 4-H clubs throughout the county will play a large part in the two-day event, Thursday and Friday. From club members will be chosen the county's healthiest boy and girl—a proper placing of emphasis on health care.

Vocational agriculture classes will have displays along with the schools, the Juvenile Grange and the Future Farmers of America.

For young and old, one of the most interesting phases of the fair will be the poultry, sheep, cattle and hog exhibits. These will be housed in a separate building. Each fowl or animal is one that was raised by a youthful Richland countian. The livestock will be judged during the Friday session.

Real importance of the Junior fair lies, of course, in the fact that it provides incentive for the youthful exhibitors all the year around. It gives the girls who are working on dressmaking, cooking or home furnishings a definite time to look forward to, when their work will be shown with the outstanding work of other groups. It is also an ideal time for the young people of the county to get acquainted with each other.

The Bit and Spur riding club show and the party for exhibitors at Johns park Thursday are other features of an annual event of which the entire county can be proud.

War Refugees as Immigrants

THE UNITED STATES, being solely populated (except for the Indians) by immigrants, or descendants of immigrants, can scarcely take a stand against continuance of immigration to such extent as can be properly handled by the "melting pot" facilities of this country in transforming peoples of alien thought and training into good American citizens—as so many earlier immigrants have become.

President Truman's suggestion that some of Europe's war refugees be admitted to the United States, while it has a humanitarian motivation, is in full accord with an earlier idea that this country could be made a haven for many of the distressed and downtrodden people of Europe, and a number of these have contributed notably to American advancement.

It has been inescapable, of course, that some undesirable immigrants have also found their way into this country and any further immigration should be fully safeguarded in such matters as health, intelligence and record of good behavior.

It is noteworthy that during the war years admission of immigrants for permanent residence was substantially reduced, and it is estimated that as many as 400,000 could be admitted without reaching the total that would have come since 1941 if previous annual quotas had been filled.

An interesting sidelight is that the government of Ecuador, South America, is inviting North American and British settlers, with an offer of approximately 124 acres of "potentially productive but uncleared land" free, "except for modest commission-transfer charges, to approved applicants."

Further information on this subject, it is stated, can be gained by addressing an inquiry to Dr. J. M. Sheppard, Co-Intermediary, Casilla 315, Quito, Ecuador, S. A.

The Palestine situation reveals the seriousness of the problem of displaced persons—victims of war—and the United States cannot ignore a share of the obligation involved in this phase of postwar difficulties.

Ancient Autos Take To the Road

THE LITTLE flock of ancient automobiles from New York City taking part in the Glidden Tour is making one concession to life in 1946. Included with the collection of museum pieces taking to the road is one modern car, a 1942 Ford to be driven by Mrs. Ivy Finn.

The New York contingent is joining other participants in a junket to Buffalo, Detroit and Cleveland. The expedition, sponsored by the Veteran Motor Club of America, is a revival of the old Glidden Tours last held 30 years ago.

Mrs. Finn will act as shepherd to 15 more venerable vehicles and their drivers. As tour treasurer and chief marshal she will see that no one fails behind the 2-mile minimum speed set for the trip. She will dash ahead to warn city policemen of the procession about to wind into their midst, and it will be her duty to nail a tow car, if needed.

As a simple precaution Mrs. Finn will carry with her a tire pump, two hydraulic jacks and a fire extinguisher.

Scarcity of Tin Plate Continues

TIN PLATE is so scarce that much food which should be preserved will go to waste this year. The United States is now producing 85 per cent of the world's supply of plate, 15 per cent of which goes to foreign food canners, but the amount shipped is only one-third of the amount needed, according to the magazine World Report.

European countries which used to produce tin plate for themselves and South America can meet only a fraction of the demand. In America, supplies are adequate so far, but the scrap steel used as the base for tin plate is scarce. It appears that tin can salvage is just as important now as it was during the war.

It is noted that since former Mayor LaGuardia left New York that city has shown the greatest progress in noise abatement.

Just why it is necessary to have a pen that "writes under water" has not yet been explained.

It is said of the 1946 swimming suits that "these days has so little cost so much."

HOW NOT TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE

Russian Policies Have Alienated Most of Europe, Built Up Ill-Will

(Editor's Note—Today Drew Pearson gives another important diagnosis of our difficult and all-important relations with Soviet Russia.)

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—If the Soviet government had deliberately set out to make mistakes it couldn't have made more than it has piled up in the past year. In the one year that has passed since V-J Day, Russia has won the ill will of her neighboring countries in Europe, has lost virtually all her friends in the United States and has turned most of the world against her.

In considering our present strained relations with Russia, this is all-important. It indicates that time is running on our side, that Russia's own policies are playing into our hands, and that war can be avoided.

One year ago Soviet Russia was considered the great savior of the world. In Europe, the Russians were given credit, far more than the United States, for liberating the occupied countries, were even hailed by some as the pioneers of a new world order. In the USA, most Americans had a genuine admiration for the heroism of the Russian people and looked forward to a period of friendly cooperation.

Today that good will has vanished. In all of Russia's satellites with the possible exception of Finland and Czechoslovakia, the Soviet is extremely unpopular, even hated. Rumania and Bulgaria would bolt Russia in a minute were it not for the Red army. Hungary and Austria which Russia hoped to win over, voted overwhelmingly against the Soviet. In France the strong Communist upsurge has now hit the downgrade. Even in Yugoslavia, where Tito is supposed to be supreme, the Russians are not popular.

Most interesting fact is that the countries nearest the Russians usually dislike them most. Thus in more distant France, there is more pro-Soviet sentiment than in the adjacent Balkans.

Finally, in the American-British zones of Germany, Germans are fearful lest the western Allies eventually evacuate and Russia walk in.

U. S. Stock Goes Up.

Thus the world has turned against an aggressor nation. Thus also, the world has turned toward a nation which has no selfish axes to grind and which is attempting to cooperate with the rest of the world.

This is what Secretary of State Byrnes has sincerely tried to do at Paris; and as far as this observer could ascertain, his patient, fair-minded policy is paying dividends. Part of the world, once ready to sing Russia's praises, has veered toward the United States.

Therefore, the No. 1 point of American policy should be to work things out within the family of nations, to put Palestine and other controversial problems under the United Nations; not to let the British drag us into separate alliances. This is our greatest danger.

If we become the tail on the British kite we can be ensured into war with Russia — exactly where the British foreign office imperialists want us. But as long as the smaller nations of the world are convinced of our unselfish motives as long as we remain aloof from both sides, our strength as a world leader is secure.

Tension Increases.

However, this above may not head off war with Russia. As this is written, censored cable-world dispatches from the Far East report new clash of rifle fire between American and Russian troops along the Korean corner. This is the first time U. S.-USSR troops have deliberately fired at each other.

Another reported deviation from London reports the British general staff meeting daily to plan strategy for defending the British lifeline in the Near East.

In other words, certain belligerent elements in Russia are quite willing to risk war now; and certain elements in England believe a showdown is better now than later. In a charged atmosphere like this, one spark can cause tragedy.

However, this observer's experience in watching foreign affairs convinces him that seldom does any nation provoke an incident if it knows that incident means war, thus the best way to prevent war is to let a prospective belligerent know he will get it in the neck if he sticks his neck out.

In other words if Russia knows categorically and definitely that she will be at war with us if she becomes an aggressor against the United Nations, then the chances are 100 to 1 Russia will risk no war.

Could Have Stopped Hitler.

To illustrate. If Adolf Hitler had known he would have been at war with France and England when he sent his troops into the Ruhr and Rhineland he never would have given them marching orders. As it was, fearing war, he gave them two sets of orders, one to advance and the second to retreat if the French army resisted.

Likewise, Hitler never would have sent his troops into Austria if he hadn't known the Allies were unprepared. It has now developed that Hitler had no real military strength at that time, was shrewdly barking on Allied timidity and dissension. He was right.

Later, of course, having won powerful industries and resources in the Ruhr, Austria and Czechoslovakia, Hitler was in a position where he dared risk war by invading Poland. But had not France and Britain vacillated in the Ruhr, Austria and Czechoslovakia, Hitler never could have risked war with Poland.

Likewise with Japan when it first invaded China. Had Secretary of State Stimson had the support of President Hoover in 1931 when the Jap warlords first walked into Manchuria; or had he received British-French support when he urged the League of Nations to act against Japan, our long and costly battle of the Pacific might have been avoided.

Japan Outguessed Us.

Even five years later, when Franklin Roosevelt and Admiral Leahy tried to induce the nine-power pact signatories and our state department appeasers to blockade Japan, we could have prevented the Pacific war.

But Japan knew the power of our isolationist Chicago Tribunes and Washington Times-Heralds. She knew also the deceptive diplomacy of the British Foreign Office. And little by little the Japs captured the resources of all China, then of Indo-China until they had built up an empire which required four years to defeat.

World strategy has not changed since then. The same thing is also true of Russia. If she gets away with her first aggressive step in Turkey, or if she annexes Iran, she will probably get away with the other aggressive steps, until finally we find ourselves set for a serious showdown—and war.

If, however, the first aggressive step is never taken, there will be no war. And that first step will not be taken if Russia knows definitely and categorically that, if she takes it, there will be war—with the United States.

In brief the three main points of our program to prevent war with Russia should be: 1. Avoid being the tail on the British kite and work through the United Nations. 2. Let Russia know that her first aggressive step in violation of the United Nations means war with the USA. 3. Do everything in our power, as so frequently urged by this column, to win the friendship of the Russian people.

Another column by Drew Pearson on how to prevent war in Europe will follow shortly.)

Want to Be Amazed? Read About Nylon.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — In case you're one of those skeptical male citizens who sneer at the word "nylon" because it's just something that women folk stand in line for hours to get, you better take another look, neighbor.

First thing you know, that word may be cropping up in your life all day long, each day—and it won't be just something the ladies wear on their legs.

What's that? Oh, so you're one of the smart guys, yet, you already knew they made tooth brushes and automobile tires out of nylon, did you?

Well, well. If you knew all that, perhaps you also knew they can make "take a deep breath . . .

Coil forms for telephone headsets, extrusion - jacketing for insulated wire, drinking tumblers (you'd call them glasses except glasses are made of glass), combs, slide fasteners, tableware, children's feeding dishes, and—

Seat covers, panelling, various interior decorative uses for houses, cars, airplanes, trains, buses and the like, wallets, briefcases, handbags and similar products where it can be used as a substitute for leather.

Now that's just the beginning. Also, it can be used for coating electric wires—merely by running the wire through a nylon solution at a mile-a-minute rate of speed—and special kinds of tubing, not to mention vacuum packages where strength, airtightness and flexible-stream resistence are important.

Furthermore, (still with me, chum?) It can be used to coat or cover various types of fabrics in order to give them more wearability, and its varied solutions come in almost any color or shade desired.

Finally — to bring this thing to at least a temporary pause—they now are making various kinds of bearings for machinery out of nylon products and some of them need no other lubricant than water for normal operation conditions.

All this foregoing array of unrequested information may not come as a surprise to you but it certainly did to thousands of Chattanooga citizens, not to mention the writer.

It all started the other day with the announcement with the Du Pont people, who seem to have a penchant for dabbling in new enterprises, are about to construct themselves a 20 million dollar nylon plant at Chattanooga.

The Chattanooga News-Free Press put a few of its editorial and research experts to work on the subject of this new local enterprise and even they came out of the huddle shaking their heads in amazement.

Nylon, it seems, has about as many potentialities as the atom. In fact, it deals with the molecule, which is something like a half-brother or maybe stepsister to the atom.

Rather than being a synthetic fiber and bristling material, as popularly supposed because of its well-known use for sheer hosiery and tooth brushes, nylon actually always has followed the definition of a plastic-technically, it is the result of reversing the kind of research which brought the atomic bomb—that is, instead of splitting the molecule as they did the atom, they experimented with methods of putting two little molecules together to make a big one.

Out of all that came numerous new, so-called superpolymers — and you know what happens when you get to playing around with superpolymers — sooner or later one of them is going to be loaded.

When it is, you get nylon, and with nylon, you can make anything from a tooth brush to an auto body. Simple, eh?

Take off those stockings, baby, I wanta build a house.

It also develops that the War Assets Administration has allowed the United Nations and a dozen other international organizations to get preference over American businessmen in buying surplus goods. Maybe some of those nails for which Mr. Wyatt is hunting have gone to Joe Stalin.

Some States Disregard "Civil Liberties."

WASHINGTON—It is becoming obvious that the federal statutes for the protection of civil liberties must be revised and strengthened.

This is clear from the recent lynching atrocities in the South that have shocked the nation. And from the infringement of free voting rights by corrupt political machines which once more has been called to national attention by the outbreak in McNairy county, Tennessee, and by the criminal performance of Boss Ed H. Crump's Memphis organization.

In outstanding cases local officials again have failed to protect the lives of citizens and the rights guaranteed to them, or to punish those guilty of violations, all of which is the first duty of government without regard to locality.

The justice department here has been deluged with pleas for action from people who look to their government to protect them. Some of these pleas have been frantic. The department has instituted investigations both into lynchings and into allegations of voting frauds under civil liberties statutes. It has been criticized for lack of results.

To all this officials reply that the civil liberties statutes, though seemingly broad, have been so narrowed by court interpretations that it is difficult to operate effectively under them.

Attorney General Tom Clark, himself, has taken official notice of the demands and the criticisms. He says his department is doing everything it can in the way of investigation and prosecution.

At the same time he pointed to the tenuous nature of the civil liberties statutes and suggested the need of further legislation to strengthen them. He will report the department's experience in operating under them and the weaknesses discovered in them when congress reconvenes. That represents some progress.

"As attorney general, I have caused to be investigated all cases which might imply violations of the civil liberties statutes," he said in an Ohio speech.

"Federal action in most of these cases hangs upon a very thin thread of law. It is like trying to fight a modern atomic war with a Civil war musket. However, we have been unsuccessful in halting some displays of mob violence which I and all other citizens condemn.

"As I have stated, every resource at my command as head of our department of justice has been ordered into action to discover the perpetrators of the horrible crimes which have been committed. The same vigilance shall continue in all cases."

The department's efforts, he said, "Will not stop there."

"The time has come when congress may have to pass legislation to insure to all citizens the guarantees under the Constitution."

The campaign for a federal anti-lynching bill has diminished in recent years because of the almost complete disappearance of mob violence. But now it has appeared again, and in horrible forms.

The record now can hardly be ignored, nor can the case for strengthening the civil liberties statutes which the attorney general says he will present to the next congress.

A citizen is a citizen, whether he be white or black, and whether he lives in Georgia or Mississippi or Louisiana or Illinois or New York or South Dakota or California, or anywhere else. It is about time to recognize that. The Constitution makes no exception for localities.

LaFollette Defeated By Votes of "Friends."

WASHINGTON—A study of the recent primary election in Wisconsin shows the varied forces at play in this year of dense political apathy. Wisconsin has always been a singularly fascinating political laboratory and, in the primary, it lived up to that reputation.

The strategy attempted behind the scenes, months before the contest took place, had not a little to do with shaping the final outcome. Before Sen. Robert M. La Follette, jr., announced his intention, in March of this year, of giving up the Progressive party and returning to the Republican fold, he had a most interesting offer from Democratic Chairman Robert Hannegan.

Hannegan wanted La Follette to turn, not to the GOP, but to the Democrats. He intimated that, if La Follette would seek re-election as a Democrat, he would have the support of the Democratic organization in Wisconsin. And, more important, he would get help from the CIO-PAC.

La Follette rejected this offer. Hannegan realized then that his task was to find a Liberal with a Progressive record to run in the Democratic primary. He decided on former Congressman Howard J. McMurray.

McMurray was not easily persuaded. The Democratic organization in Wisconsin has slipped badly. But finally, McMurray yielded to Hannegan's arguments and ran upopposed in the Democratic primary. The results show that he received the votes of labor in industrial areas which in the past have gone to La Follette.

Whether that resulted from teamwork between Hannegan's Democratic committee and the PAC is an open question. La Follette believes his desertion by labor was the product of a deliberate campaign by the extreme left—under Communist domination—to defeat him because of his stand on foreign policy. He attributes the start of this campaign to criticism of Soviet Russia which he made in a speech in May of 1945.

Thus, as La Follette sees it, the extreme left in the labor movement combined with the extreme right in the Republican party to kill off a middle-of-the-road Liberal. He puts the same interpretation on the defeat of Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, in Montana.

Certainly the maneuvers of the extreme right were plain enough. Republican regulars, headed by Thomas Coleman of Madison, had a chance to take La Follette back into the fold and forgive him his revolt against the GOP. He had made himself a national figure. Over and over, in conservative as well as Liberal papers, he has been praised for his ability in congress. Instead, the Old Guard in Wisconsin slammed the door in La Follette's face.

One is forced to a melancholy reflection on the ingratitude of the voter. Even the special-interest groups forget their friends.

As chairman of a senate labor subcommittee, La Follette directed a searching investigation into the anti-union practices of big employers. He showed how goon squads, spies and stool pigeons were used to prevent union organization.

Against this rather sinister background, a public opinion was created which helped to make possible the passage of legislation safeguarding the rights of organized labor.

But memory is short. The votes of labor defeated one of the ablest men in the senate. Even though he is out of the senate, there should be a place in government for an expert who has put more than 30 years into learning what makes government wheels go round.

ODD FACT

The first explorer of what is now New Hampshire is thought to have been Martin Pring, who anchored in Piscataqua harbor in 1603.

Timely Editorial

For the Duration Only.

Omar Bradley is the kind of man who would not make his stinging rebuke of this nation's neglect of its wounded and incapacitated veterans unless deeply stirred and certain of his facts.

It's a matter of attitude. During the war, nothing was good enough for these men. But once the danger lifted, the people began to lose interest.

The thoughtful regard once shown them because of the patriotic incentive is now replaced by a general indifference. Why bother? They are wards of the Government and the latter will provide for them in any case.

The supreme irony of it is that it means paying double for those who are already bearing the heaviest cost of the war. — Detroit News.

Common Interests of Britain and U. S.

LONDON—As the conclusion of this series of reports from Britain, it will be well to have a look at the uneasy, unwritten but working partnership between Britain and the United States.

This partnership is the working basis of the foreign policies of both countries, as any sound observer knows who has watched Messrs. Bevin and Byrnes in Paris. It is also the central fact of the Western political system, just as expansion is the central fact of the Soviet political system.

From the British standpoint, the partnership is made necessary by Britain's strategic situation, which is far from secure. The British Isles themselves have ceased to be an island fortress. On the contrary, the British chiefs of staff reported to the cabinet in formal terms some months ago that the new weapons had rendered Britain indefensible.

With a limited land mass, Britain cannot attempt the dispersion of industry and population which is the only true defense in the new age.

Therefore, the chiefs of staff went so far as to recommend that careful consideration be given to relocation of essential war industry in the dominions and colonies.

Even though some time will elapse before atomic weapons cease to be an American monopoly, the present position is by no means reassuring. Mass use of long-range rockets, much larger than the V-2, is a grim threat, for example.

And at least one of the new model German rockets which the Soviets have been spraying over Scandinavia from Peenemunde, was observed beyond Oslo in Norway, which gives a range of more than 600 miles — latest reports give them a range of nearly 1,000 miles.

Except that the rockets are of non-ferrous composition, nothing precise is known of their design; but it is inferred from their range that they are of great size and can carry a heavy warhead.

Changes in Britain's imperial position increased the effect of the changes in the strategic situation. Among obvious changes are such events as the declaration of India's future absolute independence.

But the fundamental change is that the British imperial system is now under direct pressure at several points from another power, the Soviet Union, which is too strong to be effectively resisted without aid. The imperial system is essential to Britain's economic life and political strength. British interests further demand that no single nation achieve unchallenged domination of the European continent, where the Soviet Union is also pressing forward.

Thus, with rather heavy hearts, the British have been forced to turn to partnership with the United States, in order to counter-balance the Soviet Union's post-war weight in the world.

They have even suggested more formal recognition of the partnership by some such action as placing the still functioning combined chiefs of staff on a permanent basis.

Because these facts have been at least dimly apparent to many Americans, it has been assumed by some that the advantages of the Anglo-American partnership are all on the British side. It has even been suggested that the United States should seek peace in the world by mediation between Britain and the Soviet Union. But this suggestion is not in accord with the realistic situation.

There are a few outstanding questions which can perhaps be negotiated, such as the division of oil resources in the Middle East (negotiation of this question was earnestly but fruitlessly suggested by Ernest Bevin to Generalissimo Stalin many months ago, during the early stage of the Iranian crisis), but this is not true of the real major issues unless the United States is prepared to imitate Neville Chamberlain's system of "mediating" between Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Mediation between Britain and Russia would not work in the first place. From John Strachey on the extreme left to Winston Churchill on the extreme right, the British are determined not to yield what is vital to them without putting up a fight.

In the second place, it would be a demonstration of political bad judgment, even more insane than the unhappy Chamberlain's was, for what is vital to Britain is also less directly vital to us.

Some further Soviet gains in areas now under British influence are probably inevitable in the long run. For example, recommendations of Bevin's able assistant, Hector McNeil, to use economic measures to alleviate the tragic sutiation in Greece seem to have been acted upon too late.

But the really big issue are whether the Soviet Union is to dominate Europe by including Germany in its system and whether the Soviet Union is to capture the Middle East.

In either case, Britain would be crippled as a major power. What would then be the position of the United States?

The answer must be obvious to any thinking man. From Korea to Koenigsberg on the Baltic, the nations which surround the Soviet Union may be divided into two classes: those which have always lacked political strength and those which have lost all serious political strength in the war.

Britain is the only completely "hard" political structure in Europe or Asia. If Britain were also to be softened up, there would be virtually no capability of resistance to Soviet pressure anywhere in the whole vast European-Asiatic land mass. And in the long run, that would almost certainly place the United States in a position of sheer desperation.

Such are the impelling motives of the two partners to the Anglo-American partnership. The partnership's relative importance will diminish as the wounds of war are healed and strength is regarded in other nations. But it will hold the key to the future so long as there is still truth in Brooks Atkinson's statement that the relations between the Western and the Soviet systems are no more than a "armed truce."

For these reasons, although Britain perhaps bears the larger proportional share of the common burden, the working partnership between Britain and the United States is an equal partnership, equally advantageous.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

Joe Frisco, the famous stuttering comedian, once found himself scheduled to appear on the same benefit program with the immortal Enrico Caruso.

"What does he do?" Frisco whispered to a stagehand. "He is a singer," was the amazed reply Frisco walked over to Caruso, tapped him on the shoulder and stuttered, "Now l-l-look here buddy. I am f-f-following you on this bill. L-l-lay off Dark Town Strutter's Ball, will you?"

There came a time when Joe Frisco had gone three full years without a profitable engagement. One morning a big picture executive called and said. "Joe, I've got good news for you. There is a spot for you in one of our new pictures. It's yours for $300 a week."

"My salary," said Joe firmly, "is $2,000 a week."

"Don't be arbitrary about this, Joe," advised the executive. "I suggest that you at least come down to my studio and talk the thing over with me."

"What?" cried Joe. "And get l-l-locked out of my hotel room?"

WHAT MOTHER DID

Love is tender; watchful, too;
Quick to think and quick to do.
—Old Mother Nature.

A mother's love is that almost always. Mrs. Happy Jack Squirrel is a good mother. When her babies are born they are very small, blind and helpless. Usually their home is high in a tree. In the spring it usually is in a hollow, sometimes in the trunk; sometimes in a big limb. If she has a second family in warm weather then she likes a big, airy nest outside. But such a home is harder to keep secret. Any one passing that way can easily see it, and usually does.

This year she had raised one family and now she had four more babies. They were in her big outside nest that she left only long enough to get the food she had to have. This never was long at a time. Every minute she was away from that nest was an anxious minute. The rest of the time, when she was not nursing the babies, she was on guard that no enemy with hunger for baby squirrels should have a chance to get into that home.

So it was she saw and stopped Mr. Blacksnake half way up. What a fight! All the neighbors gathered to watch it and cheer that fighting mother on. Finally Mr. Blacksnake was only too glad to glide away, getting out of sight as quickly as he could. Then Mrs. Happy Jack returned home and did some fast thinking as she sat in her doorway watching to make sure that Snake did not come creeping back when the neighbors had returned to their own affairs and the way seemed clear.

"He knows I have babies here. He knows that if I didn't have I wouldn't have fought him as I did," thought she. "He is likely to come back and try again. Others must have guessed my secret too. Of course. I wouldn't trust my darlings with any one, not even their own father, and he is sure to come poking around to find out, if he hasn't guessed, why I won't let him in the house. Those babies are no longer safe here, for I can't be with them every minute! I do have to eat. I never would feel easy while I was away from them. I never would. I've got to move them. That is all there is to it. I've got to find a home for them somewhere else, and the sooner I do it the better."

For a few minutes she sat still, thinking over all the places she knew of that might do for a home for those precious little squirrels. Finally she made up her mind.

"I'll take them back to the hollow tree in which I brought up my first family. That is just what I'll do. It was a safe home for the others and it will be a safe home for these. I wish it were not so far away. I will have to make the trip four times, for I can carry only one at a time. And each time it will be a long and dangerous journey. Supposing one of the Hawk family should see me and try to catch me!" She shuddered at the thought.

Quick thinking demands quick doing. She wasted no time. She went inside and picked up one of the babies in her mouth, holding it by the loose skin of the breast so that the little fellow could cling with arms and legs around her neck. Carrying him this way she could run, climb, even jump. She had to hold her head higher than was comfortable, and she couldn't watch for enemies as she wanted to. Instead she had to watch her step, as the saying is; be extra careful where and how she ran, climbed and jumped.

"I'll take them back to the hollow tree in which I brought my first family."

It seemed to her that she never would reach that old home with the first baby. She was tired. Her neck ached. All the time she worried about the babies left behind. What mother in her place wouldn't have?

As soon as the first one was safely in the snug hollow of the old home she raced back, sometimes jumping from tree to tree, sometime running along the ground. What a relief it was to find the three curled up together safe and sound? She picked up another and started to repeat that long, anxious journey. If she was tired the first time she was more tired now. Twice more she made that tiresome, worrisome trip. Then, with a sigh of thankfulness, a tired mother, as brave as she was tired, rested while she nursed her babies.

The next story: "Chucky and Wobblenose Meet."

Your Figure, Madame

—By Ida Jean Kain

The folks who say wearily that they really can't take the time for a vacation because of the pressure of work, or because they can't afford a vacation, are the very ones who would get more work done, and make more money, if they took some time off.

A doctor friend of mine asked me to write this column. He is heartily in accord with the idea that the whole world would be better off if everybody took two weeks and went fishing. Or even if they took off a long week-end. Everybody needs to get away from his problems in order to get the right perspective. Then they can come back and get the best of the job, instead of trying to make the best of it.

This doctor, and he knows what he's talking about, says that the people who most desperately need a vacation are the very ones who think they can't get away to take one. Later they come to him, and then it is often too late. A rest in time saves a breakdown.

It's inefficient to keep spurring yourself on. Eventually you are forced to rest and then it takes twice as long or longer to replenish your energy. The common symptoms that a vacation cure is the prescription needed . . . a sense of impaired health and energy. It's serious when you get up tired in the morning, feel done in by noon, have to force your brain to work or have trouble concentrating and remembering. Those are danger signals. A bad disposition is a red light signal too. When you're really tired out you can't help feeling impatient and irritable. The minute you find yourself wanting to fly off the handle, get away from work for a few days.

Our doctor favors a month's vacation. Who doesn't! He says a person can turn out more and better work 11 months a year than he can in 12 months. I believe him. But long vacations are not possible for many people . . . including those who write a daily column. The alternative . . . some time off, a change of locale, avoid monotonous living and have a hobby.

Well, everybody knows there is no use in whipping a tired horse, and it's a pity we humans don't practice more of the same horse sense to save ourselves. Making a living should not be a means to an end, but a means to better living. Dragging along isn't living better.

Washington Letter

—By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON — Through an arrangement with Mexico, the U. S. Weather Bureau's hurricane warning service is being considerably improved.

The hurricane season is at hand, so this is good news to residents along the South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, where hurricanes are likely to strike if and when they blow inland.

The new service is an important wartime development. Mexico is permitting us to use airfields strategically located in the hurricane area. Our airplanes may be dispatched to observe the position and intensity of storms and to radio back all necessary data.

The Bureau has a special hurricane teletype circuit which connects its offices on the Gulf Coast from Brownsville, Tex., to Key West, Fla., and on the South Atlantic from Key West to Charleston, S. C. All stations receive simultaneously all messages sent by any other station on the line. The three hurricane forecast centers—Miami, Washington and Boston — are connected to the teletype circuit.

Warnings, advisories and bulletins are issued frequently from one or more of the forecast centers during the hurricane season. The messages contain the position of the storm, its intensity, direction and rate of movement.

I. R. Tannehill, principal meteorogolist of the U. S. Weather Bureau, says the word "hurricane" is used as the name for any tropical cyclone of the Atlantic ocean, Gulf of Mexico, Caribbean Sea, Eastern and Southern Pacific ocean.

The Weather Bureau describes the well-developed hurricane as a vast whirlwind of extraordinary violence. It originates over warm seas not far from the Equator, where the layer of air near the surface is laden with moisture.

A hurricane has two motions: first the rotary motion of winds about the center, which becomes more violent as the storm develops and often is greater than 100 miles an hour; and second the forward motion of the entire storm area.

It is important for the meteorogolist to know the hurricane's course. There have been some very irregular movements of hurricanes. A few have described loops, other have followed what is called a "hairpin" path.

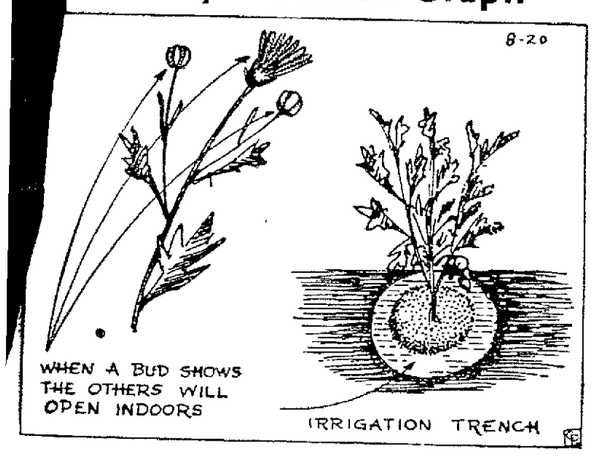
Today's Garden-Graph



Take Care of Chrysanthemums Now

Chrysanthemums which were planted last spring or early in the summer may seem to have been at a standstill up to now. From now on out, however, they should begin to perk up and they will if certain things are done for them.

If the weather continues hot your "mums" will require lots of moisture for further growth and to develop plenty of blooms. During prolonged hot spells it is advisable to mulch the plants with lawn clippings or other materials.

As soon as a single bud on a stem shows color as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph the branch can be cut off and taken indoors. Every other bud on the stem will open if the branch is kept in water.

Chrysanthemums thrive on an abundance of plant food. Liberal amounts of manure should be added to the soil previous to planting them. During the summer months and up to the time the buds show color it is advisable to make weekly applications of liquid manure. If liquid manure is not available use one teaspoonful of nitrate of soda dissolved in three gallons of water.

The trench method of applying liquid manure is an effective way to simulate growth and flowering of "mums." Make a furrow around each plant, as illustrated, and slowly pour liquid manure into it. If the plants are set out in rows, a trench can be made alongside them.

To guard against the fertilizer burning the roots of the plants, water them thoroughly before and after feeding. It is even better to apply the fertilizer following a soaking rain.

This great medicine is famous to relieve pain, nervous distress and weak, tired feelings, of certain days—when due to female functional monthly disturbances. Also great stomachic tonic! Worth trying!

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

There's a Scientific Reason

That's a husky little eager beaver on that bottle, we'd say, and that eagerness means just one thing—the milk MUST be good. And it is! For it's Isaly's Homogenized Vitamin D Milk, milk that is improved by a scientific process called Homogenization. Here's what Homogenization does:

First, Homogenization makes milk taste richer and creamier by increasing the number of cream particles and distributing them evenly through the milk. As a result, there's cream in every drop, so the last glassful is just as rich and nourishing as the first. And with Homogenized Milk, no cream is lost by sticking to the sides of the bottle or the cap.

Second, Homogenization makes digestion quicker and easier, especially by babies. This is possible because the smaller butterfat globules form softer curds in the stomach and combine more readily with other digestive food particles. And because it is smooth and uniform, Homogenized Milk makes preparation of feeding formulas easier and more accurate. Homogenized Milk also improves cooking and baking because it blends better with other cooking ingredients.

If you haven't tried Isaly's Homogenized Vitamin D Milk, call us now—4217-6—won't you, and we'll begin delivery of this richer, better, more nourishing milk whenever you say. Your first taste will prove that Homogenized Milk is definitely superior—superior in flavor, digestibility, smoothness and nourishment. Homogenization is the scientific reason.

Homogenized milk is Pasteurized milk scientifically processed by forcing every drop through very small openings at extremely high pressure. This produces nearly 10 times more butterfat globules. These tiny cream particles then combine with the milk and never separate. Thus, there's cream throughout the entire quart.
